To Whom It May Concern:

It is with great enthusiasm and wholehearted support that I share my extraordinary experience with Stuart Tarnowski, specifically his guest lectureship at Loyola University Chicago Parkinson School of Health Sciences and Public Health.

This past spring, Stuart committed to the delivery of a strong lecture in the undergraduate Healthcare Administration program in my Careers in Healthcare Administration class, which was centered around healthcare technology and sales. Stuart prepared a very thorough and detailed PowerPoint deck for my class, which clearly outlined his career journey, interests, experiences working in the healthcare industry, and most importantly- highlighted recommendations for students to pursue a career like his. Stuart provided many real-life examples tied to his direct experiences. These examples, coupled with his personal milestones provided a very strong overview of his experience in the discipline to our students.

Furthermore, Stuart's dedication towards education and the development of the future generation of healthcare leaders did not end with the lecture. Stuart offered his contact information to all students to set up individual meetings with him for continued mentorship- a gift you cannot put a price tag on.

Through my collaboration and experience with Stuart, I have truly concluded his dedication to the healthcare industry. His zeal to solve issues and connect people is unmatched. Stuart is a professional I have developed a trustworthy professional relationship with and look forward to continuing collaborations within the near future. His passion, dedication, resilience, and kindness are truly remarkable traits that will be an asset to any organization that Stuart continues to develop a relationship with.
